

FACULTY OF PHILOLOGY UNIVERSITY GOCE DELCEV – STIP

Dean:
Docent Phd. Dragana Kuzmanovska

The Faculty of Philology at University “Goce Delcev”- Stip is a higher educational and scientific institution which values the love of philology by promoting and teaching our native language as well as by promoting and teaching foreign languages. Students acquire professional competences necessary for future teachers, translators, interpreters, researchers and philologists.

The Faculty of Philology at University “Goce Delcev”- Stip establishes a solid ground as a condition for further advancement with its programs as a higher educational and scientific institution where students are trained for cultural competition among nations and especially for preserving our national identity.

Guided and supported by our professional faculty, students reaffirm their existing knowledge and acquire advanced levels of new knowledge. The professors, who carry out the teaching process, are esteemed and established not only in our country but also abroad, with a significant number coming from European countries as well as from other continents.

We are glad to inform you that more than 2.500 students have chosen our faculty as their preferred institution for professional advancement.

Our students are part of quality programs and contemporary teaching offered at the undergraduate, postgraduate and doctoral studies at the Faculty of Philology in Stip with the aim of obtaining appropriate skills and titles, acknowledged and recognized in the country and the world.

At the Faculty of Philology in Stip, students have the opportunity to choose from our wide range of departments, such as:

- ◆ Macedonian language and literature
- ◆ English language and literature
- ◆ German language and literature
- ◆ Italian language and literature
- ◆ French language and literature and
- ◆ Turkish language and literature.

The appropriate technical equipment and the phonological laboratory are indicators of our dedication in the field of practical work. International conferences, organized by the Faculty of Philology in Stip, offer an opportunity to take advantage of the phonological laboratory where our students practice simultaneous translation. In addition to the possibility of using this laboratory, the teaching process during studies is carried out with the help of modern tools such as: electronic boards, video projectors and fast access to information that supports the teaching process.

On its ten-year anniversary, the Faculty of Philology in Stip strives and, more importantly, succeeds in advancing its activity as a higher education institution, not only in the field of language, literature, education, and culture, but also in the field of other science and research related activities.

In this regard, we emphasize the collaboration with other domestic and foreign universities. As part of this broader academic family, we are worthy representatives of the Macedonian academic community.

The established international cooperation enables the students from our faculty to use the opportunity:

- ◆ for student exchange through ERASMUS programs;
- ◆ to use the scholarships offered by DAAD;
- ◆ to continue their studies at some of the Philological or Philosophical Faculties in Europe.

The Faculty of Philology at the Goce Delcev University - Stip has put great emphasis on practical work in the last few years. Linking theory with practice strengthens the capacities of our students, who as future teachers, translators and interpreters, acquire professional competences that enable them to find their deserved place on the increasingly demand inglabor market.
